What Can I Do with a Major in African and Black Diaspora

How to use this guide

DePaul’s Career Roadmap was designed to help students and alumni navigate the career development process by describing the Career Center’s services and resources as they relate to four steps: Know Yourself, Explore and Choose Options, Gain Knowledge and Experience, and Putting it all Together. This major guide uses the same four steps to help you explore and consider the possibility of pursuing a degree in African and Black Diaspora:

- Step 1 Know Yourself: Helps you explore whether this field suits your interests, skills, and values.
- Step 2 Explore and Choose Options: Provides you with information about the major and occupations related to it.
- Step 3 Gain Knowledge and Experience: Teaches you how to gain relevant knowledge and experience for your occupational interest.
- Step 4 Putting It All Together: Helps you embark on your job search process.

Step 1: Know Yourself

Think about what has attracted you to African and Black Diaspora and why it might be the right major for you. Take some time to consider your interests, skills, and values, and compare them with the information below. Keep in mind that you may not identify with everything noted below, but be conscious of whether the listed interests, skills, and values complement or run contrary to how you identify.

Interests, Skills and Values:

People who major in African and Black Diaspora often have:

Interests	Skills	Values
<ul style="list-style-type: none"><li>• Creative Writing</li><li>• Sharing thoughts and ideas</li><li>• Leading / Educating others</li><li>• Human Services</li><li>• Solving problems through discussion</li><li>• Religion/ spirituality</li><li>• Social Science</li></ul>	<ul style="list-style-type: none"><li>• Innovation</li><li>• Critical Thinking</li><li>• Communicative (verbal/listening)</li><li>• Research</li><li>• Analytical</li><li>• Leadership</li><li>• Teaching</li></ul>	<ul style="list-style-type: none"><li>• Diversity</li><li>• Originality</li><li>• Imaginative</li><li>• Problem solving</li><li>• Interpersonal Relationships</li><li>• Service to others</li><li>• Advocacy</li><li>• Sense of Community</li><li>• Abstract mental challenges</li></ul>

If what is listed above matches, or is related in a way to your own interests, skills and values, a degree in African and Black Diaspora may be for you. Continue to explore this resource to learn more.

Another Look at Interests:

John Holland's Occupational Themes

Learning about your interests will help you identify opportunities to pursue and the topics you are most naturally drawn to. John Holland developed a theory of occupational interests that described six major interest areas (learn about all six interest areas here ). Of those six interest areas, African and Black Diaspora students often identify with interests in the following categories:

- Artistic value creativity, independence, originality, and unconventional ideas: http://careercenter.depaul.edu/documents/hexagon\_artistic.pdf
- Investigative enjoy gathering information, uncovering new facts or theories, and analyzing and interpreting data: http://careercenter.depaul.edu/documents/hexagon\_investigative.pdf
- Social value working with other people to enlighten, cure, or instruct them on areas of human growth and development: http://careercenter.depaul.edu/documents/hexagon\_social.pdf

Step 2: Explore and Choose Options

Whether you have already chosen African and Black Diaspora as a major or are still considering it among other possibilities, it is important to explore the career and academic options this major will open up for you.

Concentrations:

Africa, Black America, and Afro-Caribbean and Latin America are the 3 concentrations offered by DePaul’s department of African and Black Diaspora. Although each concentration focuses on a different geographical area, students working toward a major in African and Black Diaspora will experience a rich curriculum tracing the movement of African people and culture throughout the world.

Per the African and Black Diaspora Department’s webs page, “DePaul’s African and Black Diaspora program explores the topics of power, history, identity, gender and race in relation to contemporary understandings of Africa and the movement of its people throughout the world. You will study African, Latin American, Afro-Caribbean and American regions in order to discover the relationships and dynamics between their peoples, religions and philosophies.”
