- Remember to submit bibliographical information for each article or portion of a publication you wish to include in your pack.
- Some copy right permissions are prohibitively expensive and some rights holders do not give permission to use their material. Print and Mailing Services will notify the requester when this is the case and will work with the requester on editing the course pack as necessary.
- Materials that are out of print are not necessarily in the public domain. You must still submit bibliographical info for these materials. Similarly, you should also submit info for any source material you believe to be in the public domain.
- Published tests and materials from many workbooks are not available for reproduction.
- Images and figures within source materials usually have different rights holders and separate permission must be obtained for their use. If you do not have rights holder information for them, we will need to remove them
- Some rights holders will give permission to copy entire works if the work is out of print.
- The Fair Use doctrine does not apply to materials that are in a planned course packet.
- When filling out the Print and Mailing Services job ticket, you only need to fill out the department info section. If you are not requesting any desk copies, you can leave the chartfield line blank.
- Feel free to print/ fill out as many of the first page as you need to complete your request.
- Submit your request, along with any questions, to printandmailing@depaul.edu
